Strategic Human Resource Development Masterclass

Implementing HR Best Practices in the Organisation

About the Course

Nowadays, with increasing globalisation and rapid technological advancement, it has become clear that companies must avoid the loss of knowledge to succeed. To remain competitive, they must recognise the importance of human resources as their primary asset and make the most of their development potential by continuously investing in training to provide their employees with additional skills and knowledge.

This 5-day interactive Strategic Human Resource Development Masterclass training course will guide the delegates in developing and implementing “best practices” in the organisation. Delegates will ensure that their employment contracts and HR manuals meet organisational business needs whilst attracting, retaining, engaging, and motivating employees. When organisations want to attract and retain high performers in an increasingly competitive employment environment, managing employee relations and communications is an increasingly critical tool that forms part of their overall HR strategy.

Furthermore, it will cover the key areas of HR policies and procedures so that the delegates will adopt the best practices to compete more effectively in the war to attract talent. They will learn how to improve employee engagement whilst developing trust and fairness for both parties in the employer-employee relationship.

Core Objectives

The specific objectives are to provide attendants with management skills to plan, organise, direct, and evaluate Human Resource Management and Development strategies at an organisational level and in line with the economic context.

The delegates will achieve the following objectives:

- Create a systematic perspective of Human Resource Management and its impact on the organisation
- Refine competencies for strategic talent development in aligning skills with organisational goals to drive effective talent management
- Comprehend effective leader’s qualities, cultivate agility, and strategise for succession readiness
- Develop and Implement “Best Practices” in the organisation

- Know performance management and its links with improving organisational performance
- Learn the importance of training and development and its impact on the organisation’s bottom line

Training Approach

Much practical content is shared to accelerate the delegates’ assertive development, which can (and should) be implemented immediately in the work environment. Besides the theoretical presentation, this training course will be structured based on group conducting techniques, where diversified activities and resources, such as group dynamics, audiovisual resources, simulations, exercises, and case studies, will be applied to maximise delegates’ participation, involvement, and learning.

It will be held face-to-face and can be adapted according to the company’s needs. By constantly improving their skills, employees can contribute consistently to the organisation, making the work environment even better, more human, collaborative, and productive.

The Attendees

This training course is designed for everyone who requires either a generalist understanding or an in-depth knowledge of managing HR policies and procedures and terms and conditions of employment. A practical and pragmatic training pathway that supports the delegates in selecting, managing, and guiding employees towards the company’s objectives and goals, also ensuring the alignment of HR policies with the organisation’s strategy.

Likewise, it will be valuable to the professionals but not limited to the following:

- Senior Manager
- HR Director and Manager
- Director & Executive
- Leader of Innovation
- Consultants
- Team Managers
- Supervisors
